About SEVA Foundation

The Sustainable Agriculture and Enterprise Volunteer Association (SEVA) is a non-profit organization committed to creating lasting change in rural and urban communities through a holistic, multi-sector approach.

Since its inception in 2019, SEVA has strived to empower individuals by providing them with the knowledge, tools, and support to cultivate sustainable livelihoods, strengthen community health, promote environmental stewardship, and foster cultural resilience. SEVA is dedicated to addressing both immediate needs and long-term growth through programs that align with sustainable development goals, contributing to a world where everyone can lead a life of dignity and self-sufficiency.

SEVA integrates participatory approach and representation in its model of development so that marginalized voices are heard. Our community-driven model enables local groups to take the lead in transforming their own lives, leading to more sustainable and impactful outcomes. Through the ongoing efforts in gender & women empowerment, youth skilling, livelihood & sustainable agriculture and climate action, SEVA continues to create resilience in the communities across Maharashtra and Madhya Pradesh.

Building upon that, SEVA is now venturing into community media and advocacy, education and awareness on WASH.

Work Report

Highlights of 2023-24

Youth Empowerment and Skill Development Initiatives

SEVA is committed to empowering the next generation through targeted programs that provide skills essential for employment, economic independence, and personal development.

- Samarth Prakalp – A Training Initiative for Maharashtra’s Youth: In collaboration with the Raah Foundation, SEVA launched Samarth Prakalp, a transformative program for youth aged 18-25, providing a structured 35-day training curriculum in life skills, communication, problem-solving, and digital literacy.
- This year, two training centers were established in Solapur and Nagpur, mobilizing over 500 students, all of whom successfully gained employment with local companies. Samarth Prakalp has not only improved participants' earning potential but also fostered a sense of empowerment and self-confidence, setting young people on a path to financial independence.
- The curriculum covered key areas including employability skills, financial literacy, and interview preparation, ensuring that students could navigate the competitive job market with confidence. SEVA’s Samarth Prakalp program has received widespread recognition for bridging the gap between education and employment, and it represents SEVA’s commitment to youth empowerment and socio-economic upliftment.

Environmental Conservation and Climate Action

SEVA recognizes the urgent need for environmental conservation in the face of climate change. By promoting eco-friendly practices, SEVA encourages communities to adopt sustainable approaches that benefit both local ecosystems and global environmental health.

- Tree Plantation and Environmental Awareness Campaign: SEVA’s tree plantation initiative involved over 500 community members, including students, women, and farmers, to plant more than 500 trees in various areas. This initiative aimed not only to improve the local ecosystem but also to educate participants about climate change and the importance of environmental stewardship. Through 20 awareness programs, SEVA engaged community members in discussions on climate challenges, sustainable practices, and the role individuals can play in creating a more sustainable future.

Women's Economic Empowerment

SEVA has taken significant efforts in advancing women's economic independence through entrepreneurship training, financial literacy, and the formation of self-help groups.

- Women's Entrepreneurship and Self-Help Group Training: In collaboration with Sheroes, SEVA facilitated training for over 800 women across Maharashtra and Madhya Pradesh. These workshops offered hands-on training in digital tools, business management, and entrepreneurship, with a focus on income-generation activities. Participants were introduced to the Sheroes app, empowering them to navigate digital platforms for business growth and market expansion.
- SEVA's self-help groups foster peer learning and support, creating a network of empowered women capable of contributing to their households and communities.
- This collaboration has allowed SEVA to integrate digital literacy into economic empowerment programs, preparing women for the modern economy and equipping them with the skills needed to start and sustain small enterprises.

Agricultural and Rural Livelihoods Development

SEVA's agricultural initiatives focus on sustainable farming practices, livestock development, and improved rural livelihoods. This year, SEVA expanded its programs to support small-scale farmers and their families by providing training, resources, and access to essential services.

- Farmer Producer Companies (FPCs): SEVA facilitated and supported the formation of 2 Farmer Producer Companies (FPCs) namely Nathpalkhi at Paithan block, Sambhajinagar district and Beejkranti at Ambajogai block, Beed district of Maharashtra. These FPOs have empowered rural farmers to collectively manage and market their produce. SEVA's investment in these FPCs aims to break down market barriers and offer a platform for innovative financing.
  - Both FPCs have introduced mechanisms to increase revenue, expand market reach, and enable farmers to access resources that were previously out of reach. These FPCs provide a model for rural enterprise, reducing dependence on intermediaries and allowing farmers to retain a greater share of profits.

- Goat-Based Livelihood Program: The Goat-Based Livelihood Program is a cornerstone of SEVA's commitment to enhancing rural income and agricultural productivity. This year, SEVA partnered with veterinary professionals and animal nutritionists to design a comprehensive training curriculum for 460 goat farmers across 18 villages in Paithan and Vaijapur.
- Farmers were trained in best practices for animal health, nutrition, and hygiene. The program successfully reduced livestock mortality rates, increased animal productivity, and improved the market value of livestock. Participants have reported not only economic benefits but also a stronger sense of community and shared knowledge.
- Goat Rearing Groups (GRG): SEVA formed 14 Goat Rearing Groups in Paithan, Sambhajinagar, fostering collaboration and peer support among farmers. Training covered animal husbandry, herbal remedies for disease, and fodder cultivation, and an animal feed unit was established to provide quality feed at a reasonable price. This initiative has significantly improved livestock health and monthly income, creating a sustainable business model that benefits both individual farmers and the community at large.
- Pashu Sakhi Training for Field Associates: SEVA has implemented the Pashu Sakhi program, training local women as field associates who can serve as intermediaries between SEVA's programs and rural farmers. These Pashu Sakhis were educated on animal health, income-generation strategies, and goat management.
- In addition to technical skills, Pashu Sakhis received training on marketing strategies and community outreach, which allowed them to expand their impact and connect more effectively with local farmers. The Pashu Sakhi program has become a self-sustaining model, as field associates now earn incentives for their services, creating a win-win scenario for SEVA, local women, and farmers.

SEVA Foundation's current activities aligns with multiple UN Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs), including:

- SDG 1 - No Poverty: Sustainable agriculture and income-generation programs.
  - SDG 4 - Quality Education: Empowering youth and adults with skill development and vocational training.
  - SDG 5 - Gender Equality: Women entrepreneurship and self-help groups.
  - SDG 8 - Decent Work and Economic Growth: Enhancing income opportunities for rural communities through Farmer Producer Companies and livelihood training.
  - SDG 13 - Climate Action: Tree plantation and awareness on sustainable practices.

Way Forward: Expanding SEVA's Impact in 2024 and Beyond

SEVA Foundation's vision for the coming years includes:

A) Enhancing visibility and outreach.

B) Expanding to new locations, Mumbai & Chandrapur, to scale existing programs and starting new initiatives on community media & advocacy, art and culture, addressing urban issues, education and WASH.

Highlights

- Partnership with Pradnya Impact Studio: SEVA Foundation aims to elevate communication efforts by building strategies for social media presence and enhancing outreach. It has partnered with Pradnya, an interdisciplinary consultancy that aims to amplify the efforts of social enterprises, nonprofits, voluntary organisations and advocacy groups through design, research and communication.
  - Pradnya supports SEVA's research and program design initiatives, offering expertise in strategic communication, content development, and audience engagement. Together, SEVA and Pradnya are strengthening SEVA's ability to connect with diverse stakeholders and amplify its impact across various channels.
  - Community Media and Advocacy: Recognizing the importance of media in social change, SEVA will leverage community media to drive awareness, literacy, and advocacy. Through storytelling, filmmaking, and digital platforms, it will empower communities to voice their issues and become active participants in development processes. This approach will facilitate knowledge-sharing and strengthen community bonds..
  - Partnership with Equity Media Collective: To develop a dynamic Community Media vertical SEVA is collaborating with Equity Media Collective (an initiative Fostering creative expression for social change with media, education, art & cultural outreach and research. It is an independent unit of Foundation for Participatory Development Communication and Research (PDCR), a non-profit organisation working on media literacy, development communication and research.)
  - This partnership involves capacity building and training by Equity Media to empower SEVA's community-focused media efforts. Equity Media will also contribute to content creation and dissemination, allowing SEVA to better engage with its target communities. The collaboration extends to executing joint projects such as film festivals and other media-based activities, enriching SEVA's outreach and fostering community participation through storytelling and shared narratives.

- Promotion of Art, Culture, and Heritage: SEVA is developing programs to celebrate and preserve and promote all kinds of art & crafts, and heritage through workshops, festivals, exhibitions, and partnerships. These initiatives ensure that cultural traditions are actively shared and appreciated across generations. By integrating cultural preservation into community development, SEVA supports a holistic approach that honors and enriches local identities.

With the new approach, SEVA Foundation's is aligning with UN Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) as follows::

- SDG 10 - Reduced Inequalities: Providing skill-building and economic opportunities to underserved communities.
- SDG 11 - Sustainable Cities and Communities: Promotion of Art, Culture, and Heritage. Supporting urban and rural development for sustainable, resilient communities.
- SDG 16 - Peace, Justice, and Strong Institutions: Promoting advocacy and community voice through media initiatives.
- SDG 17 - Partnerships for the Goals: Strengthening impact through strategic collaborations with other organizations, including partnerships for arts, culture, & heritage programs and community media vertical.

Updating SEVA foundation's objectives and documentation:

- The objectives of SEVA (on the registration documents) were framed back in 2019 to address the immediate needs and challenges faced of communities at that time and only focusing on couple of limited sectors.
  - In light of recent socioeconomic and environmental challenges, SEVA Foundation recognises the need to update its objectives to adopt a broader approach to meet evolving community needs and developmental projects including the new projects planned for 2024 onwards.
  - Therefore, SEVA foundation is updating its registration documents to accommodate both its original focus areas of rural, agricultural & allied activities, skill development, women empowerment, environment along with new objectives on quality education, climate action, urban issues, art culture & heritage and community media & advocacy.
